

Miracle Question

Suppose when you went to bed tonight, a miracle occurred. As a result, any concerns or worries you had about your life and your relationship disappeared. How would you know the miracle had occurred? Please be as specific as possible in your answers, as they will help you to identify any potential challenges in your relationship which should be discussed explicitly during your session.

1. What would look different in your life and your relationship?

2. What would sound different in your life and your relationship?

3. What would feel different in your life and relationship?
